Once upon a time, a man named John came for the first time to Paris in the famous Shakespeare and Company bookstore.

When he entered the shop, John was astonished by the number of books in such a small space. The shelves reached the ceiling. At the same time, there was not much space to pace between the furniture.

The bookstore looked like a Harry Potter setting.

John found books that he had read in French, then he went up to the first floor : there was a sitting-room for reading.

Finally he bought a book from the English cashier.
